

Join us for the Florida Chapter of The Wildlife Society's Fall Meeting and Workshop!

This year's meeting will be held on October 22-23, 2009, at the Archbold Biological Station in Lake Placid, Florida. The first day will include a business meeting, social, and dinner and awards ceremony. Diane Maehr will be there to accept the Herbert W. Kale, II Award in honor of her late husband and award recipient, Dr. David Maehr. The Paul Moler Herpetological Conservation Award will be presented to this year's recipient, Dr. Thomas Kaplan. The second day will feature a wonderful workshop by Archbold staff (Click here for details).

Registration:

Registration is only $38 and that includes the business meeting, your dinner, the social, and the workshop. No discounts are available for only attending a portion of the meeting, so please join us for the whole experience. You may register for the meeting using a credit card by clicking here. If you prefer to pay with a check, click here to download the registration form and mail it in. Pre-registration is preferred, but onsite registration will be available on the first day of the meeting between noon and 1 pm. We will not be able to accept credit cards onsite, cash or checks only.

Lodging:

Cottages with kitchenettes are available for only $25/night, plus an $8 station fee ($33 total). Cottages are assigned according to gender. Most of the bedrooms have bunk beds, a few have twin beds. There will be multiple people to most rooms. To reserve a spot and pay for your lodging, please call Archbold Biological Station at 863-465-2571. Ask for Ann Thompson and tell her you are with TWS. Archbold will accept credit cards.

Meals:

If you are staying in a cottage, you are welcome to bring your own food and drinks. Archbold does provide a continental breakfast for $4 and lunch for $7. There is a soda machine available as well. Dinner is included with your registration.
